CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING; HEAR REPORTS

CHRISTIAN CHURCH GATHER-ING ENTHUSIASTIC OVER
WORK DONE

The members and friends of the First Christian church held their annual congregational meeting Thursday evening in the auditorium of Second Ward School. A large crowd enjoyed a bountiful meal. Music was presented by the High School Male Quartet, composed of Bob Flanagan, Charles West, Allan Huggard and Bill Grimes. After the dinner, reports of organizations and the minister's report to the congregation were presented. All departments reported all financial goals reached or exceeded, and balances in their treasuries, and with no outstanding obligations or mortgage indebtedness. Sixteen people attended leadership training opportunities during the summer. Forty-four youth and their leaders participated in the fifth annual church camp at McCormick's Creek State Park. New maroon choir robes have been purchased and will be delivered soon. Bibles were presented to graduating G. H. S. seniors. Testaments have been given to the 100 service men who have gone from this church. Testaments are also presented to the Primary boys and girls when they enter the Junior Department of the church school.

Among facts the minister reported were 35 additions to the church, and 11 deaths in the membership. He conducted 29 funerals and 42 weddings, and delivered 63 addresses and sermons in addition to those delivered at regular worship services. He served in two Indiana Young People's Conferences, as vesper speaker and teacher. He also serves as chairman of the Indiana Commission on Christian Education of the Disciples of Christ. Mrs. Fellers serves as manager and dietitian for two conferences during the summer, and also serves as president of the Indiana Christian Ministers' Association. The church has purchased a portable field communion set which has been presented to one of the chaplains for use wherever needed.

Mrs. Wm. Rothenburger, wife of the guest speaker, and world renowned evangelistic singer as the soloist in her husband's evangelistic party, sang a solo. Mrs. Rothenburger was the former Mrs. Charles Reign Scoville.

The guest speaker, Dr. Rothenburger, for sixteen years minister of the Third Christian church of Indianapolis, and a world traveler and observer, delivered an inspiring address on the subject "The Church and the New World Mind." In it he showed the contributions the church can make in its Christian conception of life, property, morality and unity. He closed the address with a challenging appeal for an ever enlarging fellowship of all Christian peoples and churches, that the united church could present a workable program for the new society in which we will have to live.

The election of officers completed the evening. Results of the election will be included in the church bulletin Sunday morning.

Wilson Brothers Florists Using Women

The Wilson Brothers green house at Raccoon, one of the largest in Indiana, 27,000 square feet under glass, has made good use of women in the community, this summer as is indicated in the above picture. The shortage of men help has been as great in Raccoon as in other parts of the county, but this has not kept The Wilson brothers from producing 12,000 huge chrysanthemum plants, which are now blooming, along with all other plants. They specialize in geranium plants and ship them to almost all sections of the world.

RAF Continues Aerial Attacks

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(U.P.) RAF bombers carried one of the greatest air offensives of the war into its 11th day last night, striking at targets in Germany only a few hours after American airmen had destroyed 142 Nazi fighters which attempted to intercept their powerful daylight assaults on Bremen and Vegesack.

The RAF's newest raid brought to 21 the number of large-scale attacks on objects inside the Reich in an almost continuous offensive started Sept. 29.

V-MAIL LETTERS REPLACED AFTER PLANE IS DOWNED

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Duplicates of 400,000 V-mail letters were on their way within forty-eight hours after the Army Post Office received word recently that a plane carrying the originals had been downed. The incident was revealed today by Edwin O. Perrin, War Advertising Council manager on the armed forces and manpower, speaking at a luncheon meeting of the War Advertising Council.

Youth Admits Slaying Three

CHARDON, O., Oct. 9 (U.P.)—William Morell, 20, gangling, dull-witted farm youth, confessed early today that he had killed two women and a man on the Pennsylvania farm where he was employed as a field hand.

He tried to absolve Janice Graham, 20, the hired girl, who fled with him after he had slain Mrs. Everett Wilson, 48, wife of his employer, Mrs. Catherine Wilson, 78, his mother and Robert McKay, 61, another hired hand, Thursday morning.

But Pennsylvania authorities were enroute here to return them to Mercer, Pa., and it was announced that both would face first degree murder charges.

Morell and Miss Graham were arrested last night in the farm house of Charles Cobb, seven miles southeast of here. They had represented themselves as a young married couple in straitened circumstances and the Cobbs put them up for the night.

Weeping and near collapse, Miss Graham insisted to authorities that she had had nothing to do with the slayings. Morell had bound her hand and foot, she said, before he strangled the younger Mrs. Wilson in the Wilson dairy barn and then went to the house and killed the older Mrs. Wilson and McKay with blasts from his shot-gun.

That they were lovers was apparent and authorities were working on the theory that the sequence of homicide began when the younger Mrs. Wilson surprised them in lovers' intimacy behind the dairy barn.

Italians Failed To Hold Germans

AJACCIO, Corsica, Oct. 9.—Because 85,000 Italian troops, fully equipped with tanks and guns, failed to hold vital bridges against a handful of German patrols 20,000 Nazi troops escaped to safety virtually unscathed.

This is the conclusion one must come to today after reviewing the recent Corsican campaign with American and French officers who participated in the fight, and even after talking with the Italians themselves.

Other self-evident facts of the campaign visible at first hand are these: The only serious damage done the Germans in evacuating Sardinia and Corsica was done by the Allied Air force shooting down Nazi transport planes and by Flying Fortresses and Mitchells, of the American Air Force, which turned the road from Bonifacio to Bastia into a mass of twisted, blood-stained wreckage.

Only about 100 German prisoners were captured.

With the exception of the gallant partisan stand against the Germans trying to take Bastia in the first days of the fighting and a violent mountain battle between the Germans and an American "occupational group," there was no heavy fighting.

The Italians did almost no fighting and what they did was in the best tradition of Caporetta and in many instances when isolated groups of Italians wanted to fight they were stopped by their Fascist officers.

The Italian commander, General Magli, refused to let his soldiers fight and ordered an American officer out of his headquarters and complained to the French general of "discourteous treatment."

Magli also opposed every move by the Americans or French to obtain Italian vehicles to move American and French troops to the battle zone. This island abounds with thousands of Italian trucks, motorcycles and cars, all still run by the Italians. The Americans and French are virtually without transportation and cannot requisition it but must ask the Italians "to lend" it if they are willing.

Only now as the Italians dribble back to Sardinia are the Allies refusing to let them take their vehicles on the ships.

The key to the hopes of the Allies of cutting to ribbons the German forces trying to hold Corsica lay in the Italians holding the key bridges over the terrible mountains which are

REDS GROW STRONGER IN KIEV THRUST

GERMANS IN ANCIENT CAPITAL OF UKRAINE ARE IN A TIGHT SPOT

MOSCOW, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—Russian forces, bolstered by an almost ceaseless flow of troops and tanks across the Dnieper, were reported today to have seized a number of German strongholds and strategic high-ways on the west bank in a developing pincers drive against Kiev, Russia's third city and capital of the Ukraine.

Reinforced German units, battling frantically to stem the Soviet menace to Kiev and the entire eastern defense line, hurled tanks, planes and men against the Soviet lines.

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Russians repulsed the German thrusts and disabled or burned twenty-four tanks and eight self-propelled guns. Soviet airmen covering vulnerable Russian communication lines brought down thirty-two German planes in air combats.

Moscow dispatches suggested the Germans finally were turning to make an all-out stand for the Dnieper as they abandoned their retreat and "elastic defense."

The Germans admitted "marked accentuation" of Russian attempts to widen their cross-river footholds north and south of Kiev and near Kremenchug and reported Soviet attempts to establish new ones.

Major battles also raged in the north where 3,400 Germans were declared to have fallen before the Soviet drives aimed at Vitebsk and the Latvian border, in the extreme south the last suicide rear-guard of Germans was falling as the Red Army cleaned up the final German foothold in the Caucasus.

The Germans fought viciously before Vitebsk, falling back to defense posts organized in expectation of recapture. But Moscow said the Russians routed them out and in one large populated place annihilated the entire German garrison after day-long fighting. Prisoners and war material were captured and over 400 German dead lay on the battlefield.

Spreading west and south from captured Nevel, seventy miles from the Latvian border and sixty miles north of Vitebsk, the Russians killed over 3,600 Germans and took 600 prisoners in two days.

"The enemy tries in every possible way to stem the advance of our troops but suffers failures," the communique said.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German radio commentator, called the Nevel attack "a major operation" and said the Germans "are continuing to throw fresh reserves into this fighting sector which has become the focal point of the battle."

In the south the Germans were taking to barges in the retreat back across the Kerch Strait from the Caucasus to the Crimea. Five more barges, loaded with German infantry were sunk and sixteen of the planes protecting them brought down, the bulletin said, and six of the strong points protecting the retreat fell to the Russians as their defenders died or surrendered.

The Caucasus bridgehead clean-up was led by Gen. Ivan Petrov who had a personal interest in seeing the drive carry across the strait. It was Petrov who led the defense of Sevastopol, Crimean naval base, before it fell a little more than a year ago.

It would not be the first crossing of the strait by the Russians who executed a similar maneuver in the Winter of 1941. The Crimea also was menaced from the top by Russian crossings of the Dnieper.

The Germans were reported to have planned a defense zone thirty miles deep along the Dnieper but the sudden, speedy Russian attack caught them before they were ready. Pravda said German divisions were brought from the central and other fronts to defend the Dnieper while elite guards were stationed behind them with orders to fire on any retreating troops.

NAZI FORCES ARE RETREATING TOWARD ROME

BOTH BRITISH 8TH AND AMERICAN 5TH ARMIES ON THE MARCH IN ITALY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—The Germans have abandoned their costly attempt to halt the British Eighth Army at Termoli and are retreating along the Italian east coast toward Pescara and the lateral road to Rome, 55 miles to the southwest, a front dispatch said today.

The British and Canadians had flanked Rome at long range and their resumed advance posed a growing threat to enemy forces holding the Volturno river line against the American Fifth Army, nearly 90 miles to the southwest.

Fifth Army artillery already was laying down a heavy artillery and mortar bombardment to soften German defenses on the north bank of the Volturno less than 100 miles below Rome.

Hitler Attempts To Raise Morale

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Adolf Hitler, attempting to bolster morale on the German home front, assembled Nazi Party chiefs and military and home front leaders at his headquarters and told them the German people must not be discouraged by reverses, the Berlin radio disclosed officially tonight.

Hitler mentioned the possibility of defeat, and the theme of his talk seemed to be: "Germany will win if—"

"The Nazi party's struggle for power set an example for today's struggle of destiny by the German people," Hitler said. "The party never allowed itself to be discouraged by setbacks."

"Arms alone mean nothing," he said, "if not backed up by the will of men."

The Nazi Party's firm determination that utmost preparedness to help" are inspiring the people today.

THREE MORE ENEMY SHIPS SUNK BY U. S.

POSSIBLY A FOURTH JAPANESE WARSHIP WENT DOWN BEFORE YANKEES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 9.—(U.P.)—A heavily out-gunner and outnumbered American destroyer force blasted three and probably four Japanese warships in a furious night action in the Central Solomons and sent the rest of a big enemy evacuation fleet limping northward in retreat, it was disclosed today.

Two or three more of the nine enemy warships engaged, mostly destroyers, were damaged badly against "moderate" but unannounced losses to the American flotilla.

Aerial reconnaissance revealed the new Japanese attempt to evacuate cornered garrisons from the Central Solomons, and the American destroyers took up their battle stations 15 miles north of Vella Lavella Island shortly before midnight Wednesday. Enemy scout planes circled overhead, radioing their positions to the oncoming armada.

Both sides moved in quickly to the attack, and within a few minutes a Japanese light cruiser or destroyer leader blew up and sank. Its flaming wreckage illuminated the battle area.

Two enemy destroyers followed it down and a third was hit so badly that it was believed to have sunk. Two or three other destroyers, hit repeatedly by American gunfire, ran for home, alone with two still undamaged warships and the entire convoy.

The battle lasted "only a very few minutes," a spokesman at Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters said.

"Our attack was so vicious," another navy spokesman said, "that what was left of the enemy force—believed comprised on nine warships, mostly destroyers—fled. And I mean fled."

Headquarters of the third amphibious force announced later that liberator bombers attacked the battered remnants of the new enemy armada, scoring possible hits. Pilots' reports tended to confirm the belief that the fourth Japanese warship was actually sunk.

Events In Portugal Watched By World

MADRID, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—Reports from Lisbon said there was considerable activity among government officials in the Portuguese capital today and it was rumored that the Japanese minister there had burned a number of papers at the legation after a conference yesterday with the premier, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

There also were reports that a special session of the National Assembly had been convoked to hear an important statement.

Salazar and the Japanese minister were said to have exchanged sharp words at their conference and to have parted without a handshake.

Unconfirmed reports said that afterwards the Japanese diplomat went to his quarters, burned some documents and forwarded others to the Japanese Embassy at Madrid by automobile.

Speculation here centered upon such possible developments as (1) Portugal's severance of relations with Japan, (2) a Portuguese declaration of war against Japan unless Japanese troops evacuate Timor, island colony northwest of Australia, and (3) that Portugal planned to invoke her traditional defensive Alliance with Great Britain.

May is the Month of Disaster Red Cross Study Reveals

May is the month of disaster. It tops all other periods for havoc of storm, fire and flood in a twenty year study just compiled by the American Red Cross.

Early spring months, March through June, captured the dubious honor of bringing most disaster to the nation on the average. Tornadoes stood far above other causes, with 617 recorded during the period 1920 and 1940. Thirty-seven states were hit but Texas bore the brunt of the destructive whirlwinds with a total of 79.

Fires of all types ranked second as a source of disaster, with floods following close behind.

For relief work during the two decades Red Cross announced that it had spent $96,616,961.00.

During the year ending June 30, 1942, a total of 171 disasters are recorded, with tornadoes topping the list.—(Science News Letter, August 21, 1943.)

Mental Peace Needed

Armistice for hate and return from violence when the war ends is called as necessary for the mental health as is cessation of hostilities.

A return from violence on the world's mental front will be necessary when the war finally ends, Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation predicted in his annual report just issued.

"If, after the victory of the Allied powers, a psychiatrist could be called upon to prescribe for this sick world, he would undoubtedly say that it is as necessary to 'return from violence' on the mental front as it is to cease physical hostilities," Dr. Fosdick said. "The destructive war of the spirit must be stopped. There must be an armistice for hate. The world must slough off its mood of violence if it expects to have a rational, healthy future."

Spiritually this mental attitude of violence means emphasis upon antagonism rather than upon cooperation, and upon fear rather than faith, he explained. Intellectually it means that emotionalism takes the place of objectivity, and that propaganda is substituted for truth. In political and social life it means selfish partisanship instead of considerations of total interest, and the substitution of factional advantage for general welfare. In short Dr. Fosdick said, the mental attitude of violence means the fragmentation of society, in which the whole is forgotten for its parts and the universal is lost in the partial.

"These tendencies, always present in human life, are augmented by the complicated structure of modern society," the report continued. "The size and scale of modern life have outrun man's experience, his patience and his capacity to understand. The complexity of the social and industrial order affords favorable opportunities for the concealment of injustice."

Conscious of wrong, bewildered by facts as well as propaganda, men slip into some segment of the total circle—some loyalty, however fragmentary, which seems to them intelligible. With distorted perspective their own special advantages and their small fraction of society become not parts of the whole, but the whole itself. They confuse love of freedom with their particular interest in freedom. To them what is justice for their faction is justice for all.

When such a state of mind possesses a group, the employment of force as a means of gaining ends becomes a logical consequence.

"It is surely not too soon to discuss the problems of peace, which will prove even more difficult than the problems of war. Nor is it too soon to plan for the return from the mental attitude of violence and begin the formidable task which this about-face will involve. This is the task of the teachers, the philosophers, the clergy, the journalists, the statesmen, the poets, the novelists, the social scientists and all who search for universal values and totality of vision. Upon these men and women must rest the burden after the war for our mental disarmament, and for seeing that the welfare of mankind is not forgotten in the conflict of lesser loyalties."—(Science News Letter, April 17, 1943.)

HITLER ATTEMPTS

Hitler was quoted as saying, "especially under the hard conditions of the air war."

"The Fuehrer then continued," said Berlin's official broadcast, "that if the German people keep up this spirit, which has stood the test on the battlefields as well as at home, the war can never be lost and must and will bring a great German victory."

Hitler was quoted directly as having conducted his address by saying: "Take along with you in your hearts the unshakable belief that if our determination does not swerve, this war will end with a great German victory."

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH

Where can I hear the voice of the church? Where is to be found comfort, assurance and revelation to our weary hearts these awful days of unbelief and uncertainties? Peter one day asked the question, "To whom shall we go?" John 6:68. Where shall a broken hearted mother go to find comfort for an anxious heart with her only boy at the battle front protecting the church of his fathers that it may still speak forth its sweet message of hope to a bleeding world.

What shall I speak to me when I do hear it? Shall I know when I have heard the voice of the right one, or has its voice long been stilled in the wall of distress and uncertainties of the day? Jesus Christ asked Peter one day if he had found a certain evidence of who was speaking and teaching the disciples great truths at which they so marvelled. His answer was "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." To which Jesus replied, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed unto thee but my Father which is in heaven." Matt. 16:17.

Continuing the explanation he stated that, upon this rock of divine revelation of the Son of God to your poor heart, I will build my church. So the divine revelation of Jesus Christ to the human heart is the "rock" or foundation upon which the church is builded.

This is a revelation of great love, redemption, ministrations, acceptance, sacrifice, hope and a great home in heaven at the end. His great work in human form was completed. Then going back to heaven He sent forth the Holy Ghost into the hearts of men who had accepted Him. This is the church of Jesus Christ.

The Italians guarded all of these bridges. If they had held, American and British troops being rushed to the island could have made their way rapidly across the islands and cut the Germans strung along the eastern coast into isolated segments. But, when German paratroopers approached, the Italians not only fled but obligingly blew the bridges themselves to keep the Germans from chasing them. American and French officers on the island at the time said.

at Grand Forks, North Dakota, talked to Miss Walls' third-hour junior English class on Thursday, Oct. 1.

The high school P. T. A. will be Oct. 12 at 6:30. They will hold a picnic in dinner in the Home Economics Building, after which Mr. Stapley will talk. All the parents and teachers are invited to attend.

Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Hill, members of the local Fire Department, talked to the children of the Jones School Monday, stressing the importance of fire prevention.

The sixth grade entertained the Jones School with a play, "The Victory Vacation," during a Junior Red Cross chapel program Thursday morning.

Mrs. Cherry was entertained with a birthday luncheon Monday by the other First Ward teachers.

During the first four weeks of school the pupils of Miller School bought $435.45 worth of stamps and bonds.

Mrs. Jeanette Arnold is substituting for Miss Blanche Williams in the third grade of Miller School. The entire school extends its sympathy to Miss Williams in her trouble.

Fire Chief Lawrence came to Miller School during Fire Prevention Week. The pupils were interested in the essay contest on fire prevention. Mr. Friend told them, how to prevent fires and invited them to see the equipment.

The sixth grade at Ridpath School enjoyed trail blazing, Wednesday morning. They have been studying how Indians, trappers, and hunters made their trails. Floyd Decker and Ike Strain were chosen to blaze a trail. The rest of the class set out to find them by their placement of rocks and signs. Much fun was had climbing fences, back-tracking, etc. until at last the boys were found.

The intermediate grades of the Martha Ridpath School had a fire prevention convocation on Monday. They were privileged to have Fire Chief Lawrence and Mr. Ragsdale as speakers. Much interest is shown over the essay contest.

A service flag was placed in the window at Martha Ridpath School on Oct. 5th for the occasion of Pvt. Miriam Peck's birthday, who was formerly a teacher in the building. The school also remembered her with a greeting by telegram.

It is because Catholics believe this so firmly, that while paying their full share of the support of the public schools, they are also buying land, erecting buildings and educating with their own money more than 2,500 pupils, thus saving you and other taxpayers more than $250,000,000 annually. And this Catholic education in its academic standing, in its teaching ability and in its educational results, averages well up to—and in many instances far ahead of—the public school education today.

The United States of America was founded on religious principles. All our schools, up to 1840, were essentially religious. George Washington said: "Reason and experience forbid us to expect that natural morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principles"; and this sentiment has been echoed by nearly every president since. Who can then say that the Catholic school, the nursery of Faith and citizenship alike, is un-American?

SCHOOL NEWS

Tuesday, Oct. 5, was "tag day" at the high school. Miss Walls' home room was in charge of advertising the sales for defense bonds and stamps, so in order to encourage the students to invest their money, they had Mr. Brumbaugh and his art department make tags with "Buy a Jeep" printed upon them, and these were given to all students pledging to buy at least one ten cent defense stamp. As a result of this idea, the record at the end of the day showed the greatest student participation of the year. Two hundred and eighteen students bought stamps or bonds, making the sales for the day $781.95. This brings the total amount sold since Sept. up to $6,185.15. Besides the tags, Frank Bundy and Mr. Brumbaugh made a Jeep poster which is now hanging in the main corridor. Mr. Snyder's home room is in charge of the bond advertising for the coming week.

Miss Mary Ann Newgent, American Airways hostess, visited the high school last Monday and talked to the fifth hour senior English class. Miss Newgent was one of 32 women out of 1000 applicants who was chosen to take the three months training course. Miss Newgent is now stationed at Chicago.

Norman Stewart, a former member of the class of '44 has been back visiting the school. He has just finished his basic training at Great Lakes, Ill.

strain on civilian goods. "In wartime no money should go for gifts that people could as well do without.

But food this year is sure to be welcome and useful. The War Food Administration confidently expects this to be the greatest food-giving Christmas ever. The Office of Price Administration rules have been tailored to fit this expectation. Sugar stamps 15 and 16 have been set aside for use by canners, and more sugar can be had from ration boards on the basis of the rationing record. Regulations provide a liberal margin for bona fide gifts of canned food—up to 30 quarts a year for each member of the family—but no "giving" that might aid black marketing.

Food giving for Christmas 1943 is in the spirit both of Christmas and of the whole food front policy—sharing of the food. Many a Victory Gardener can share with friends or relatives who have not been able to grow for themselves foods that will be a welcome addition to the rationed supply.

More Soap Coming

The War Food Administration has just given further assurance that rumors of soap shortages are unfounded by announcing a 28 per cent increase in all soaps produced for civilian use. More fats and oils are being allocated for this purpose, and manufacturers will be required to use prescribed percentages of non-fat materials as substitutes for fats.

A temporary shortage of a few types of soap from retail shelves has been caused by consumer hoarding. Actually soap stocks in 1942 were the largest ever, and some of that heavy supply was on the market until the middle of 1943. Soap production has dropped somewhat this year, but the increase just authorized will allow for slightly more soap per capita than in pre-war years. There is no basis for "scare buying," the War Food Administration assures housewives.

In July, 1943, an order was issued allowing for soap making only 80 per cent of the fats and oils used for the purpose in 1940-41. The extra fats and oils now being made available will increase the quantity to 90 per cent in household packaged soaps and all types of bar and liquid soap. This will mean a jump in this type of soap from the present 17 pounds of soap a person to 22 pounds.

Even so, soap supplies will not be excessive, so careful conservation is still necessary. Supplies will be increased, but so will demands. Military and industrial needs are greater, and large supplies soon will be needed in the manufacture of synthetic rubber.

The new soap program was discussed at a recent meeting for the War Food Administration's Soap and Glycerine Industry Advisory Committee, which experts increased production to get under way around October 1 and to get to the shelves of retail stores by November.

For Homemakers In A Honey Belt
Beekeepers this year are packing and marketing their own crop of honey. Selling from roadside stands or to local merchants. So from clover country to orange blossom regions much honey will be eaten near where it is produced.

This means that homemakers in honey belts are likely to have a plentiful supply. They can stretch sugar rations if they know how to substitute honey for other sweets in cooking, baking, and jam making. In food value honey is an energy-producing food like sugar and other sweets.

To use honey successfully in place of sugar or molasses in cooking a homemaker must know how to adjust her recipes and why.

In cakes and cookies honey may replace molasses, cup for cup. The rule is always the same: Omit the molasses, use honey instead; and omit the soda, use a teaspoon more of baking powder for each quarter teaspoon of soda omitted. Molasses has quite a bit of acid which must be neutralized by soda. Honey has no acid so does not need soda. But honey does require extra baking powder to make up for the leavening that soda and molasses together give a cake.

Honey can replace sugar entirely or in part in baked foods, and the adjustment is simple if the homemaker refuses to be frightened by a couple of fractions. Remember that honey contains water, so less liquid is needed in a recipe. Here are the fractions: Replace sugar with honey, cup for cup, and reduce liquid one-half. Or replace one half the sugar with honey and reduce the liquid one-quarter.

Three points more to keep in mind when cooking with honey: First, bake at low temperatures because honey burns easily. Second, don't boil honey mixtures longer than necessary. When honey is heated too much, the aromatic oils evaporate the delicate flavor is lost. And, third, remember that honey not only contains water, but it also takes moisture from the air. That is why cakes and cookies baked with honey stay moist a long time. It is also the reason honey frostings on damp days become sticky.

NEWS in the WORLD OF RELIGION by W.W. REID

For six years a commission of the Protestant Episcopal Church, composed of twenty-one bishops, priests, and laymen, and headed by Bishop Benjamin M. Washburn, of Newark, N. J. have been working on a revision of the official hymnal of the church. Now the commission announces the completion of their task and the issuance of the volume. It contains 600 hymns, most of them well-known and familiar to the churches. Two hundred one of the hymns are new in the Episcopal Church though many of them are familiar to congregations; and some of these and the music of others appear in print for the first time. The last previous revision of the hymnal was in 1916, and prior to the writing of most of the so-called social gospel hymns.

"Religion will become a real world force by a public and collective act on the part of the Christian churches and the Jews in this country and in Britain—above all on the part of the world-wide Roman Catholic organization—recommending world economic and political reforms," said Dr. Henry Slonimsky, of the Jewish Institute of Religion, recently. "There would then ensue so great a volume of power, such a tidal wave of moral force, that the men who rule the world in legislative halls and executive chambers would be carried along and obey its voice."

Speaking at a conference of rural church leaders in Columbus, Ohio, recently, Dr. Paul L. Vogt, sociologist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, said: "The country church may sometimes appear to be weak and of little importance in country life. But a survey of its resources in the universality of human service, in persistence as an institution, in its adaptation to the newer recognition of the neighborhood as an organizational unit in rural life, in its faith in the value of volunteer leadership, in its ethical standards of personal life, and in its acceptance of the belief that the Christian brotherhood can be established in communities as well as in the souls of men, will convince the student that no agency is potentially more powerful than the church in the advancement of rural welfare."

The Swedish motorship "Gripsholm", which has already made a notable round trip between the United States and the Orient repatriating civilians between Japan and the United States, is now en route to somewhere within Asiatic waters returning 1300 Japanese citizens from this country. In exchange, sometime in October, the "Gripsholm" will carry to North and South America some 1500 citizens of these republics. They are all civilians and many of them are missionaries from the churches of North America. The State Department is making an official list of the returning missionaries and will release it shortly.

Ten prospective ministers, students at Boston University School of Theology, have recently returned from Mexico where they spent the summer "trying to serve the churches and the people in a practical way" under the sponsorship of the Board of Missions of the Methodist church. As three teams they served in and around Guanajuato, Jalisco, and Zacatecas, where there are rural evangelical churches. Their services included building sanitary equipment for homes, playground equipment for churches and schools, planting trees, planting model gardens, teaching athletics, English, and farm methods. They expect to return to Mexico next summer; and think students from other seminaries will join them in similar service projects.

Dr. Robert T. Henry, of Moorhead, Miss., a missionary of the Methodist church, is now en route from the United States to China to become the executive director of the American Advisory Committee in Chungking—the administrative agency in China for the Church Committee for China Relief, operating from New York. Dr. Henry, a native of Alabama, and for twenty years pastor of the Methodist church in Soochow, China, has long been associated with movements for the feeding and relief of Chinese famine and war victims. He was caught in Hongkong in 1942 by the Japanese; he was serving there as field director for the American Advisory Committee when stationed in Shanghai. Some months later he was repatriated on the M. S. "Gripsholm." The committee in Chungking distributed about $2,500,000 in U. S., Canadian, British, Australian, Chinese and other church relief funds this year.
